At first Mrs. Mercer bore the attack good naturedly, but when one hard, well-directed ball sent her hat flying and an-other struck her in the neck she became enraged.

Quickly drawing a formidable clasp knife, she turned upon her assallants, who promptly fled. She chased them a short distance, but they escaped. John Formy-ninth Street, was returning to his home with a loaf of bread, and Roscoe Coukling, nine years old, who lives at No. 56, was about to start on an errand. Catching her knife tightly, she seized Fennally by the collar, threw him to the pavement and slashed him on the right side of the face. The boy servamed and the woman released her hold.

Young Conkling was standing near, and Young Conkling was standing near, and the enraged woman next turned her attention to him. Before he could escape she selzed him and aimed a victous blow at his throat. The boy dodged and the knife cut a deep gash on the left side of his head. The cries of the boy by this time had aroused the neighbors, who ran into the street only to beat a hasty retreat when they saw the woman's knife.

Covenanters Violate Church Vows by Casting Ballots.

A SHOCK TO CONSCIENCE

Statement of Editor Pritchard of the Christian Nation.

Rensons Why Members of the Church at Newburg, N. Y., Were Tried by the Presbytery.

New York, Nov 29.-John W. Pritchard, editor of the Christian Nation, makes the following statement with regard to the recent trial of members of the Cov enanter Church in Newburg, N. Y., for voting at a civil election:

"During the past week papers have printed accounts of the 'triaj' of some Covenanters in Newburg, N. Y., by New York presbytery for voting. Voting at civil elections, under right conditions, is clearly a duty. But the conditions may be such that voting would cease to be a duty and become a crime against con-

"The late Charles A. Daha understood his. In an editorial in the Sun, after the election of 1894, he said: 'It is the duty | of all citizens to vote whenever it is possible for them to do so; but there may by cases in which some citizens would sicri fice their moral independence by voting. A man has the right under the Constitution of the United States to refrain from "A few words will explain why the members of the Covenanter Church, in Newburg (Dr. J. R. Thompson's) were

'tried' for voting at a civil election.
"The Covenanters are the original Presbyterians, ante-dating every other Presbyterian organization in the world, for voting because of the mere act of vot-ing. They were tried for the violation of a church law, for a violation of their cove-ant vows.

"Any violation of law in the State is a

The patriotism of the Covenanters has by some papers been called in question. The covenanters are patriots.

"Before the American revolution the Covenanters spoke out for entire independence at a time when, so far as history shows, John Adams had not yet spoken his first public words in favor of independence.

'More than sixty years before the eman cipation proclamation by President Lin-coin, the Covenanters' Church enacted without a dissenting voice that "No slave nolder shall be allowed the communion of the church."

"Do you favor increasing the standing to vote because they could not swear to support it. They disfranchised themselves to 100,000. I believe that this matter will be discussed at the short term." stitution to harmonize with their early onvictions concerning it. "Non-incorporation, even political is not a sign of withdrawal from the great activities of the world as has been charged. The reverse is true.

"Covenanters of today are not only at the front in every Christian reform movement, but they are leaders in the mircantile world. "The members of Dr. Thompson' church in Newburg were not tried for the mere act of voting; but they are members of a church which believes that the Con titution, by reason of its Christless char-acter, debars Christians from voting; and they were tried for violating a church law by which the members make a cri-fice of their franchise until, by the adopion of a Christian amendment to the Constitution, the franchise can be en-joyed without sin,"

ANXIOUS TO SEE "OLD NANCE!

Father of the Yellow Mill Pond Victim Not Permitted to Talk With the Midwife.

Bridgeport, Nov. 29.-Snow was piled ceply over the fall steps on Saturday light when an old man struggled to the door and rang the bell. When a warder spened, a gust of wind laden with snow learly blew him across the threshold. He was a gentle old man, with mild uestloning eyes. Deep seams encircled his mouth, and his hair was white,

"I wish to see the midwife, Mrs. Nancy Gullford," he announced, when he had been escorted into the sheriff's office. "But Dr. Guilford cannot be seen There are strict orders about it. How-ever, if you wish to send her a mes-

MR. CROKER'S ABSENCE PUZZLES HIS FRIENDS

> HIS WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN Expected to Meet Democratic Club Members Saturday Night, But Yet Tarries in the West.

> New York, Nov. 29 .- Democratic leaders are beginning to manifest some uneast ness over the prolonged absence of Richard Croker. As soon as he departed for Chicago the Democratic Club was deserted, as it usually is in his absence, but the information was passed along the line last Saturday that he was to return last night, and at the same time dispatch es from the West indicated that he had left, apparently homeward bound.

There was a large and expectant crowd in the club on Saturday night, and evening dress was conspicuous in honor of the leader's return, Much disappointment was expressed when he falled to put in an appearance. Some of the more faithful waited until Sunday morning in the hope that he might come in a late train, and they reluctantly departed only when the last possibility had vanished. Mr. Croker's most intimate friends in the club announced that he would surely be back Sunday night, and once more the club members turned out in force to re-ceive him. Again they were doomed to disappointment. Train after train came in from the West, but none of them brought Mr. Croker. Anxiety was ex-pressed in regard to his safety, and men who are credited with being in all his se erets quieted this by pointing out that Mr. Croker is an experienced traveler, and that nothing could have happened to him. For the third time the throng gathered last night, still in evening dress, and for the third time Mr. Croker failed to apthe third time Mr. Croker laties to appear. The prediction of Mr. Freedman that he would certainly reach the club today, falled to give the usual satisfaction, but all efforts to learn where Mr. roker was, and what he was doing, were unavailing. His whereabouts remained an impenetrable mystery to the club, and depression took the place of mirth.

an impact of the place of mirth.

In the course of the inquiry which was carried on by the anxious ones the fact was brought out that, before election.

Mr. Croker had planned a trip to South-California. It was his idea to hire ern California. It was his idea to hire two parlor cars for the journey, and to take a selection of the leaders with him. Mr. Van Wyck's defeat caused this proect to be abandoned, but some leaders insisted that Mr. Croker had gone to the Pacific Slope. Indeed, it became known that he had signified his intention of going there on the day before his departure of going there on the day before his departure.

Other leaders inclined to the belief that Mr. Croker had gone to Arizona, but no proof was brought forward in support of this assertion, except that the climate there agreed with him.

There was even a staring rumor that the Tammany chief had arrived, after all, on Saturday, and that he was concealed in his room in the clubhouse. Expectant giances were cast at the stairway, but Mr. Croker did not come down.

Late last night the confident prediction was still being made by the "insiders" that Mr. Croker would be here today, but the walters and watchers were skeptical.

MONSTER GUNS FOR

NEW BATTLESHIPS Rids for Twelve-Inch Pieces Show a Great Reduction in the Price of Steel. Bids have been received by Capt. Charles O'Nell, chief of the Bureau o Ordnance, for twelve 12-inch guns of the 1838 model for the battleships Maine, Missourl and Ohio. These guns will have a much larger chamber than the 12-inch gun now in service, which will permit them to hold a larger charge of smokeles powder, and thus impart a higher velocity to their 850-pound projectiles. It is expected that the velocity will reach about 1,800 feet per second. One bld was submitted by the Bethlehen Company at 18 cents a pound, and the other by the Midvale Steel Company at 9 cents. The authorities were very much gratified at these figures. It was pointed out that a few years ago gun steel could not be bought for less than 36 cents a pound.

Representatives of the Carnegie and Bethlehem Steel Companies have been in conference with Capt. O'Nell respecting the price they should charge the Gov-ernment for Krupp armor plate, but no agreement has been reached. They will submit a written proposition, which Secretary Long will forward to the Senate and House Naval Committees.

Thieves at Berwyn.

Hyattsville, Md., Nov. 29.-The Baltinore and Ohio railroad office at Berwyn Station was entered by thieves the other night and the place ransacked, but the visitors secured only twenty-two cents, which had been left in the cash drawer. Not being satisfied, they broke into the postoffice and, after turning everything upside down, the thieves obtained thirtyeight cents.

Baltimore and Ohio Detective Brown ing and Deputy Sheriff Barr, of this place have a very good description of the thieves, and are endeavoring to catch them.
